

Franz Kafka
and the
ATTACK
of the ISMS

teach the lesson!
Group Research Project

Your task

Design and implement a 30-40 minute presentation/lesson related designed to teach your classmates about your assigned literary/philosophical movement.

THE PROCESS

In order to research your literary/philosophical movement and create your lesson, you must:

1. Use library resources (internet and books) to gain a fundamental understanding of your movement.
2. With your group, decide on a plan to teach your classmates:
the basic belief system underlying your assigned movement
the ways in which these ideas relate to Kafka's Metamorphosis
3. Create your handouts, visual aids, reading(s), and activities.
4. Sign up for a time to teach your lesson (Monday-Wednesday of next week... either first half or last half of the class).
5. Teach your lesson and receive feedback from your peers and me.

EACH LESSON MUST INCORPORATE:

- A handout (for your classmates' future reference)
- Some kind of visual (video, images, PPT, etc.)
- An activity to engage your peers (discussion, worksheet, etc.)
- Some kind of "assessment" (so you know your peers understand what you've taught them)
- A logical opening and closing

Movements for discussion:

surrealism, expressionism, existentialism, freudianism, marxism

OUR MOVEMENT

SEE RUBRIC ON REVERSE SIDE FOR EVALUATION CONSIDERATIONS.